

AUTOMATION ENGINEER

Company

Our client is a French owned company specialized in the design and conceiving of taylor-made testing equipment, test fixtures, test benches and assembling production workstations for the electronic application industries such as automotive, energy, electric network, medical industries. We have 25 years of experience and strong technical backgrounds. The company needs to develop in China.

Job description

You will be in charge of the functional analysis, the design, the programming, the commissioning of PLC required for our test benches. The following missions include:

- analyzing the technical specifications from the customer
- writing the functional analysis
- programming the logic controller
- writing the documentation
- commissioning at the customer's site
- training the users
- performing FAT & SAT

You work in relation with the project manager to deliver the right system at the right time, according to the schedule.

Knowledge and Skills Required:

The candidate is a specialist of logic controller programming. He has a Master's graduate and benefits from a five year experience in automation programming and designing. The candidate should be familiar with the most common programming languages for controllers (Step 7, WinCC (Intouch)). Abilities in database programming (SQL, Oracle...) in relation with PLC is an advantage. An experience of wiring electrical bays and programming of HMI is an advantage.

Good communication skills and fluency in Mandarin Chinese and English are mandatory. French skills will be an advantage.

Position based in Hong-Kong, Kwai Chung. Some trips to mainland China, Asia, and also France.

Contact

please send your cover letter and CV at invenio@invenio-export.com